RESEARCH DESCRIPTION:

This project is part of a new initiative from the Centre on Governance. The research assistant's role will be to support development of educational video clips on concepts and contemporary issues related to public governance. The work consists of helping to identify relevant governance topics and issues, finding bibliographic references from the scientific literature, and helping to write narratives for the preparation of short podcast videos. This is an excellent opportunity for participants to become more accounted with the field of public governance while becoming familiar with means of communication using new information technologies. Do not hesitate to contact Professor Champagne if you have any questions about this initiative (echampagne@uottawa.ca)

KEY LEARNING ACTIVITIES:

Students selected for this project will take part to the preparation of desk reviews (research in databases and identification of relevant topics/issues) and will contribute to the preparation of educational video clips.
